INTRODUCING THE HEALTHY FOR LIFE COMMUNITY NUTRITION PROGRAM

We are continuing our work with The American Heart Association to help improve the health of all Americans, by launching a new video series for the Healthy for Life® community nutrition program, ensuring communities can continue critical nutrition and culinary education experiences during the pandemic.

The Healthy for Life® video content will be released throughout the year, with the first two videos available in October and the remaining available in November and December.

“For the past five years, Aramark and the American Heart Association have created nutrition and cooking education experiences designed to help families in underserved communities learn how to access, choose and prepare the healthy food they need. Now that those education experiences can’t happen in person, we’re offering an innovative way for those community members to continue their health and wellness journeys while they are home,” said Dan Wainfan, who leads health and wellness at Aramark.
